A. I think that students shouldn’t have to be forced to do 100 hours of community service to be able to graduate. Here are three reasons: 1: most kids don’t have time. 2: community service should be either volunteer or a punishment not a requirement. 3: kids shouldn’t be forced to work or free to graduate.

B. Should cell phones be used in school? I think that cell phones should be used in school, because they could be used as an amazing tool. Most people miss use cell phones in school. That’s why most teachers want to banned cell phones in school. This is my reasons why I don’t think cells phones should be banned in school.

C. With a phone you can get books that you’re reading in class. It is really easy to annotate because you can highlight and put notes on it that you just have to click to see plus it saves paper. Then later when you have to write lame papers on it it’s really easy to find all of your annotations and what notes you took on that certain thing so you can keep your thoughts that you had at the moment. It is a lot cleaner, less time consuming, and it keeps paper for other things like the lame sauce essay. Some people say that you would be playing games instead of writing annotations and things but if you didn’t when you had to write the essay you would fail because of it and that would be punishment enough for it because than your parents would yell at you and you would have to make up the work later and it would be more stressful later than you would learn from your mistake.
